Each grate bar has three sides-long wear

When only one side of a grate bar is continually next to the fire all the wear is concentrated on that one side. The life of the grate bar is thus naturally just one-third as long as when the wear is distributed on three sides.

That explains why Sunshine grates have three lives. Each of the four grate bars has three sides. Each time the ashes are "rocked down" (no shaking with Sunshine) the side next to the fire can be changed. Thus the life of the grates is greatly prolonged.

When desired, the heavy ball dog teeth on the grates will seize hold of clinkers, grind them up, and drop the particles into the ash-pan.

Buy the Sunshine—the durable, convenient, economical furnace, guaranteed by largest furnace makers in British Empire.

Extension of Time for Homesteaders

For the purpose of assisting railway companies throughout the west in procuring sufficient labor for railroad construction, the Dominion department of the Interior has issued an order through all Dominion land agencies, which will permit homesteaders and pre-emption entrants to go on railway construction until April 1st, 1911, without losing their rights on their land.

The order was issued from the Red Deer land office last Monday morning by Capt. Cottingham, the local agent. Homesteaders who wish to go on railway construction may have protection under the following conditions:

Application for such protection must be made no later than the 1st day of April, 1911, to the agent of the land committee, who will grant it, provided it is shown to his satisfaction that the applicant has perfected his entry at actual residence upon his land for at least 30 days.

This order will do much toward filling the demands for labor on railway construction, especially in Alberta, where the bulk of railway work is proceeding this year. It is expected that a large number of homesteaders will take advantage of the order. Red Deer News.

Festivals are coming in from men who are wearing my hand sewn, water-stopping boots, and although they have been wading in water, they haven't had a damp sock yet. Can you give names of men who say this? If you are looking for the same kind of footwear.

If Fred Heron can make boots and shoes real O. K. he can also satisfy you with shoe repairing and his charges are reasonable. Bring those shoes along to be fixed. Workshop in Reitzel and Kalbileisch's store, Didsbury.

Harmony Necessary

Nothing predicts more truly the commercial decay of a town than petty strife and lack of harmony among its citizens. Harmony is essential to progress, and this can best be instituted by means of a well organized club. This organization should not be limited in its membership to bankers, merchants and professional men, but should include every person who is interested in the welfare of the community. The capitalist and the laborer should meet as equals on this common ground, for they are both vitally interested in those things which look to the improvement of conditions in the town in which they live. —Commercial

Frost & Wood No. 3 Binder does Better Work

Because of the Eccentric Sprocket Wheel the No. 3 Binder makes a neater, more tightly compressed bundle and saves considerable time. Dismantles the bundle faster, too, than the ordinary binder. Remember, no other binder has the Eccentric Sprocket Wheel. There is no other binder so light draft. At all points where there is a possibility of friction occurring the gears of the No. 3 Binder have provided Lubricating bushes. That's why the Frost & Wood No. 3 runs so smoothly and easily—one reason why it gives so many years of service. Another reason for its great durability is the strong, powerful construction of its back bone, which is built like a captain to you fully. Draw it at your earliest convenience and talk things over with us. We are confident that the Frost & Wood No. 3 is the binder for you. Give us a chance to prove it.

CHAPTER XVI.

HE went in one day and tiffin with them in the hanging garden. Dinsella Brown was surly and preoccupied. Dinsella Brown was unusually vivacious. At best she was a little coquettish, but at her most accom- plished lay in the ability to appre- ciate what others had to say.

Her husband, aside from a natural anxiety, was the same bittish optimist as ever. He showed no sign of re- straint, no evidence of compunction. Chase found it difficult to speak his mind on the state of affairs. There were the two heirs working out a preconceived plan or were they, after all, playing with the fires of spring?

Immediately after tiffin Geneva turned to her personal confidante. When they came forth for a proposed stroll in the grounds Lady Agnes was looking very meek and tearful, while the princess had about her the air of one who has conquered by gentleness. "It has been so apparently dull. Geneva, will you tell me why?" Geneva's why. Besides, it isn't necessary for her to be so horrid about it. She—

"She isn't horrid about it, dear. She's most self-sacrificing."

"Rubish!" She talks about the Puritans and all that sort of thing. I know all about them, but I'm not talking about them. I'll do as you say—command, I mean. I'll try to be a prude. Heaven alone knows what a real prude I don't. All this commo- rot about Bobby and me didn't exist in Geneva's mind. That man is a little more affable. He never noticed us until you came. No wife to shoo- after him and—why, my dear, he would have been dead!"

"It's all very nice, Agnes, but you forget your husband," said Geneva, with a silent smile.

"Geneva," said Lady Agnes solemnly, "if you'd been on a barren island for five months as I have with nothing to look at but your husband and the sunsets you would not be so hard hearted. You would have been a good hand away from her for the world. I wouldn't even look at him if he were not on the barren island too. I've read novels in which a man and woman have been wrecked on a desert island and lived there for months, even years, without any hope of rescue. My dear, those are terrible stories. Nobody could be so good as all that without getting wings. I'm tired of men and angels. That's why I want you for awhile. You've got no wings, Geneva, but it's of no consequence, we may have one to fly away from," "To you, to you, old bird," laughed Geneva.

"That's very American. You've been talking to Miss Petham. She's always adding things. By the way, Mr. Chase sees quite a lot of her. She types for him. She's trying to choose between him and Mr. Saunders. If you were she, dear, which would you choose?"

"Mr. Saunders," said Geneva promptly. "But if I were myself I'd choose Mr. Chase." She had a secret. She has eyes which can see through a sardine jar. He has been chosen by an entire harem, and he flies from them as if purposed by the devil. I imagine, however, that he'd be rather dangerous if his wings were to get out of order unexpectedly. But he's new, like he is."

The princess nodded her head toler- antly.

Her ladyship went on: "I don't want to walk after all. Let us sit here in the corridor and count the prisms in the chandeliers. It's so nice. I've done well. We are to have an advanced new theory. We are to indulge in double-barreled divorce proceedings. As soon as they are over Mr. Brown and I are to marry. Then we are to hurry up and get another divorce. Then we marry our double-barreled wife again. What's the use of it? Only, of course, it isn't going to happen. It would be so frightfully im- proper—shocking, don't you know. You see, I should go on living with my divorced husband even after I was married to Bobby. I'd be obliged to leave him, but I'd be obliged to leave him for the sake of the grounds for a divorce as soon as the estate is settled. But Denby has put his foot down hard. He says he had trouble enough getting me to marry him the first time. He won't go through it again. Of course it's utter nonsense."

"A little nonsense now and then is"—the princess and paused ambi- bly.

"Is Mr. Chase to stay for lunch?" asked Lady Agnes irrelevantly.

"How should I know? I am not his hostess."

"I'm sorry to tell you! I've never known you to look like that before. A little dash of red sets your cheeks off!" But Geneva threw up her hands in de- spair and started toward the stairway, her chin tilted high. Lady Agnes, laughing softly, followed. "It's too bad, but I suppose that's what little Geneva," she said to herself, with a sudden wistful glance at the proud, vibrant, lovely creature ahead. "She deserves a better fate than that."

"Geneva waited for her at the head of the stairway.

"Agnes, I'd like you to promise that you will keep your avuncular claws off Mrs. Brown's husband," said seriously.

"I'll try, my dear," said Lady Agnes meekly.

When they reached the garden they found Denby smoking furiously and Genevra had just left some time before to give warning to the English bank that trouble might be ex- pected. The shadow of disappointment that flitted across Geneva's face was not observed by the others. Bob- by Brown and his wife were off strolling in the lower end of the park.

"Poor old Denby," cried his wife. "I've never seen a man be ex- pected like this to you for a whole day."

"Suppose I ought to beat you?" he said slowly.

"Beat me? Why, pray?"

"I received an anonymous letter this morning telling me of your goings on with Bobby Browne," said he easily.

A dark satyrine face appeared.

"It was stuck under my door by Brown, who said that Miss Pelham gave it to him. I immediately referred me to Mr. Britton and Mr. Brown, and I kept the letter for future reference. I think he said it could be used as Exhibit A. Then he advised me to beat you only in the presence of the witnesses."

"The whole household must be going mad," cried Geneva, with a laugh.

"One sometimes only wants a cap- pet," exclaimed her ladyship. "A cat, a marmoset—anything! It all sounds like a farce to you, Geneva, but you haven't been here for five months, as have we."

As they moved away from the vine covered house in the garden a hand was laid upon Geneva's shoulder and the same satyrine face of a trust- ed servant appeared behind it. This secret espionage had been going on for days in the chateau. Secretly a move was made or a word spoken to the white-haired maid who escaped the attention of the waiting guests. And suddenly, those spies were no longer reporting their discoveries to Hollings- worth Chase.

The days passed. Hollingsworth Chase now realized that he no longer harbored any love for Geneva.

He was to be induced to change his mind and to take the charge of the statements from the bank.

Every morning Chase rode boldly into the town, transacted what busi- ness he could, talked with the thor- oughly disinterested bankers and then de- manded his money back to the bank.

He was in love with the princess—desperately in love. He understood perfectly—for he was a man of the world and cosmopolitan—that nothing could come of it.

She was a princess, and she was not in a story book suc- cessfully.

So far as Geneva was concerned, on passing of a few days, the killing of the time, the pleasure of gentle conquest, and then—forgetfulness. All this he knew.

At first she revolted against the court he so plainly paid to her in these last few days. It was bold, conscienceless, impertinent. She avoided him; she treated him to a short season of silence and then—then she would make him his offering—and then in the end she decided to give him as good as he sent in this first battle of folly. It mattered little who came off with the fewest scars for a fortnight or two they would go their separate ways, the girl would be gone.

And after all, it was very dull in these last days, and he was very attractive and very brave and very gallant and, above all, very sensible.

HOME FROM BURMAH.

Canadian Missionary Tells of Habits of the Kachins.

FULL of interest is the story of a Canadian missionary's work among a wild, warlike tribe of Burmese, the Kachins, who are returning to Canada by way of London, after seven years spent among the Kachins, a warlike tribe in the hills of the Chinese frontier, says Alex. Pringle, writing from London to The Toronto World. This tribe has no written language; the people are nomadic, and need to follow their herds and live by their spirits. The reasons they give for this trinity of misfortunes are very amusing.

Nat (spirit) worship forms the total sum of their religion. They believe in a lucky star attribute every unfortunate happening to the baneful influence of the stars. When a misfortune strikes a man, he is compelled to sacrifice his wife to the bear spirit.

"It's a good idea, a priest who divides with what he means to do, to sacrifice his wife to the bear spirit," he said.

"Bear meat? Why, pray?"

"I received an anonymous letter this morning telling me of your goings on with Bobby Browne," said he easily.

A dark satyrine face appeared.

PROSPECTORS AND BEARS.

Thrilling Hunt Without Rifles in the Porcupines.

Little imagination is required to associate Cobalt with stirring deeds of adventure, and the word "restrictions" is not that which comes to mind when applied to such a place. Yet restrictions there are, and of a rather peculiar sort, when the nature of the place is considered. According to the game laws, prospectors are forbidden to hunt in the Cobalt district, and the Cobalt district might almost be described as a place where emergency is the rule, so that the restriction is a wise one. The porcupine, however, is a danger to life, but in regard to the cost of living, because, in spite of the fact that moose and other game animals are plentiful, the "protection of them raises the price of meat materially."

Some enterprising stories are told of the experiences of the men who were sent to the porcupine traps. On one occasion recently he made a nocturnal call upon the pro- spective of George Grogan and his partner in the Porcupine Gold Mining Company, J. H. Ingall, who was in the camp. The party was despatched for more provi- sions, and while Grogan was in sole charge of the bear traps, the men who had been sent to the camp had come along, and all thought of a romantic death. George hastily got the pack sacks to gather and spent the remainder of the night in the camp in vigilance. Such an undignified retreat would, of course, have been quite unnecessary had Grogan been provided with a gun. The bear traps to be used were a party of three, including a Frenchman, engaged upon assessment work had a similar experience while en route to the camp. They came in the glaze when they were moving along about a mile. They were at the height of taking their grub with them when a bear came along, and the bear, when a misfortune struck him, was compelled to sacrifice his wife to the bear spirit.

LUMBER PRICES DROP

PRICE OF COMMON LUMBER REDUCED $2.00 PER THOUSAND

Coast and Mountain Mill Men Hold Conference with Retailers at Banff—Warning to Retailers who were Unwilling to Give the Farmers Benefit of Reduction—Trade is in a Very Satisfactory Condition.

Vancouver.—At the coast and mountain mills men's conference with timber retailers at Banff it was agreed to reduce prices of lumber by $2 per thousand. A number of retailers, who expressed an unwillingness to give the farmers the benefit of the reduction, were given a warning.

All the reports seemed showed the lumber trade to be in a flourishing condition. The stocks of the coast mills were said to have increased, compared with two hundred million feet on January 1 and one hundred and seventy-five million feet a year ago.

The stocks of the mountain mills are now one hundred and sixty-five million feet, as against two hundred million feet this time last year. Fifty-seven million feet more will have twenty million feet on hand at the end of the season, as compared with seventy-five million feet a year ago, while showed their stocks are forty per cent less than they were a year ago.

Several spruce mills and one white pine saw mill have closed through lack of supply of logs. The former indicate they will be open again in April. Two large saw mills at Kootenay were destroyed by fire last month, thus reducing the output for the present. British Columbia mill men are due to receive a price increase $1 per thousand. They also say that odd lengths would not comprise more than 25 per cent of their shipments.

EQUALITY IN RIGHTS

Hon. Elihu Root Continues Argument Before the Hague Tribunal

The Hague.—Continuing his argument before the Hague Tribunal on behalf of the United States, claim Hon. Elihu Root contended that fighting rights provided by the treaty of peace did not imply the equality, but that the right to fight must be liberty in common. Mr. Root submitted that the makers of the treaty understood that it was in accordance with the American conception that they had in view whatever the grant which they were making was to be subject to any power or authority of Great Britain, or of any other country, morally or affect it by legislation.

He contended that the French had exercised their fighting rights on part of the continent, and that the alliance with Great Britain without being subject to local regulations, and to the American right. The same terms were made in accordance with the American conception that they had in view before the lawyers began to argue to try and find some distinction between the two.

GENERAL FRENCH'S REPORT

Finds That in Event of War Breaking Out Forces Would Not Be Prepared

Ottawa.—It is stated by those who should be best qualified to judge from the report of General Sir John French on the conditions obtaining in the Canadian militia contains three cardinal errors.

(1) That the peace organization and the composition of the militia should be such that, in the event of war, the forces would not be ready to take the field forthwith. The general finds that this is not the state of affairs at present.

(2) That being qualified and more effective than at present should be in command of brigade divisions.

(3) That the period of annual training is wholly inadequate to produce satisfactory results.

Future of Canada is Westward
London.—The British weekly says: "For once we almost ignore any Liberal member, let alone any Conservative. The Canadian right against protection is a great fact, so great that it cannot be silenced or suppressed by any conspiracy of English papers."

It is asserted that the Canadian farmers desire no preference in the British market. Canadian manufacturers will fight hard, but the future of Canada is in the west.

Emigration of Punjabis

Caledonia.—A remarkable emigration of Punjabis, Mohammedans and Sikhs, who are leaving for British India, towards the intent of proceeding to California, is engaging the official attention of the United States consul-general. The greater number belong to the Sikh religion, and it is said the impression that they can get on the American police force.

Dirt is Flying

Lethbridge.—Some two hundred men and teams are leaving the Grass Lake district for the Three Hills country, 50 miles west of Lethbridge, Alberta, where a dirt road is being built.

The Canadian Northern railway is also heading for Calgary. Before this time next year it is expected that both these lines will be in Calgary and heading with their branch lines for the south.

FOREST WORK IN FAR NORTH

A. Knechtel Tells of the Progress Made Along Route of Proposed Railway

Winnipeg.—A member of the Dominion department of forestry, who returned recently from a trip of some weeks' duration through the territory which will be opened up by the construction of the Hudson Bay railway, gave an interesting account of his journey.

"Through the courtesy of his excellency the governor general I was permitted to come to Winnipeg in the Wolverine, in company with Countess Grey and Lady Grey. I found the forest work being done by the Dominion government, and found her very observant of the species, forms and habits of the growth of the different trees."

"Oxford House, which was the most northerly point I touched, is a mile from the sea, so as to have a hundred and one million feet, as compared with two hundred million feet on January 1 and one hundred and seventy-five million feet a year ago.

The stocks of the mountain mills are now one hundred and sixty-five million feet, as against two hundred million feet this time last year. Fifty-seven million feet more will have twenty million feet on hand at the end of the season, as compared with seventy-five million feet a year ago.

While showed their stocks are forty per cent less than they were a year ago.

"Their figures are, in the summer time, best for notices printed in English and in Cree, along the main routes of travel, and to meet travellers and immigrants, who regard the great necessity of putting their farms in order before leaving them. In case a fire occurs, the party having charge of that district is supposed to go to all the towns to call for help.

In the summer, when they will travel mostly with pack ponies, and, in the fall, pack ponies are another leader of Hon. Mr. Marshall's, and fearing that there might be a shortage as cut-off day was in sight, he sent a telegram to all the districts where salt hay in places where they had never before touched it.

"I think there will be an abundance of salt hay for this winter," he declared.

The railroads too were doing their best to help the miners, and in places where the game was scarce, they were compelled to find the shore along my route so well timbered, although the timber is mostly of small dimensions. It consists chiefly of white spruce, pine and cedar, not poplar and white birch. I did not notice much merchantable timber, but the fine trees kept out the smaller ones.

"My route lay along the line of the proposed Hudson's Bay railway. This is mostly flat, although in places the soil is so thin as to ascend in a height of more than one hundred feet. In places the soil is arable.

"I don't think the country is good for growing wheat, since summer frosts are frequent, but probably barley and oats might grow. In a garden at Nelson House, noticed the following crops growing: Turnips, Potatoes, peas, onions, carrots, beets, lettuce and radishes. Red currants were also hanging on the bushes in great quantities."

AMERICAN DEFENCE CONCLUDED

Decision of The Hague Tribunal is Expected to be Given in September

The Hague.—Mr. Henri Bourassa concluded his defense of the Canadian army and the arbitration tribunal will proceed immediately to prepare its decision. Although the agreement permits two months for the preparation of the award, it is not anticipated that more than half of that period will be required and that the award will be issued in September. A further term of six months will be asked to return to The Hague to hear the decision and to see it put into proper form.

Dominion Loans Coming Due
Ottawa.—A Dominion loan of a million and a half pounds is coming due in October. It was negotiated in London two years ago, and the terms and arrangements for it are temporary, renewable at 3 1/2 per cent, but it is stated that it is likely to be paid off at that time.

Cadet Movement
London.—In an interview regarding the cadet movement Lord Dundonald said that General Lord Kitchener, who has been instrumental in introducing the movement into Canada, has fully endorsed the idea.

Surveying Saskatchewan River
Nipawin, Sask.—The survey parties under Engineers-in-Chief Miller and Haworth, who went to Nipawin to close the gap in the river, have now completed their survey of that portion of the river which runs through the Lost River and Nipawin districts and are now working in the vicinity of Birch Island and Squaw Rapids.

ESTIMATES FAIR YIELD

CROP OF ALBERTA FAR FROM BEING A FAILURE

Non. Duncan Marshall, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, Estimates a Yield of 25,000,000 Bushels for Alberta—Dryness has been by no Means General, and Crop Failure Has been Greatly Exaggerated

Calgary.—Hon. Duncan Marshall, provincial minister of agriculture, estimates a yield of 25,000,000 bushels for Alberta—Dryness has been by no means general, and crop failure has been greatly exaggerated.

"Through the courtesy of his excellency the governor general I was permitted to come to Winnipeg in the Wolverine, in company with Countess Grey and Lady Grey. I found the forest work being done by the Dominion government, and found her very observant of the species, forms and habits of the growth of the different trees."

"It can't be said there that the Alberta crop this year is by any means a failure. As he reached his hotel, the premier met him at the entrance.

"I met you first of all, and then you allow me to go and rest and approach the premier, perhaps a trifling longer, but then I am told he is all well."

So Wilfrid Laurier expressed himself on several occasions as delighted with the simple plain, but honest welcome of the people.

"I met you first of all, and the premier met me as he reached his hotel."

"Then you allow me to go and rest and approach the premier, perhaps a trifling longer, but then I am told he is all well."

Wilfrid Laurier, however, had never seen the premier and had never heard him speak. In as simple and straightforward a manner as possible the programme was carried out.

PAVING WAY FOR AGREEMENT

Representatives of Canada and United States Conferring in New York

New York.—A preliminary meeting designed to promote the paving the way for an agreement between the Interstate Commerce and the railway Commission of Canada, whereby international commerce shall be regulated, was held in the Hotel Manhattan early yesterday.

Martin M. Tapp, chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission, and J. P. Martin, chief executive officer of the Canadian railway commission, were the conferees. It is planned that the conference, which will extend over several days, will likely result in the adoption of a code of ethics for the movement. This will later be adopted by the commissions.

By the way, the water are being considered in all its international bearings. Though there has not been any exact international commerce between the two countries, there is a definite value in the exchange between the commissions in this country and Canada, because of the great increase in trade between the two nations.

PLANNING CAMPAIGN
Stir Up Feeling Among French Canadians Against Government

National Policy

Montreal.—The National policy, of which Mr. Henri Bourassa is the chief, is assuming a vigorous campaign among the French Canadian immigrants against the government's naval policy. As a starter they will hold eight meetings in different places on Sept. 10, the date of the speakers being Koen Proost, Arthur Lavergne, Arthur Plante and numerous minor orators. Mr. Bourassa himself is not present to stir up the feelings of the immigrants, though he is behind the scenes, and his paper Le Devoir, contains the announcement of the opening of the movement.

THE PREMIER AT CALGARY

Fitting Reception Tendered to Sir Wilfrid Laurier by Citizens of Calgary

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON VII.—THIRD QUARTER, AUG. 21, 1910.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xx, 17, 24, Memory Verses, 25-27—Golden Text, Matt. xx, 28—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson may be summed up in two great truths. His humiliation and death were the means of salvation to man; and John and their mother were as truly blind as the blind men by the wayside, though not in the same way. The man by the wayside failed in an earthly, merciful, perhaps a trifling way, but the others in a great measure to things temporal, the others in a great measure to things eternal. Again for the third quarter lesson lesson is based upon His way, however, in His life, His works, His death and resurrection, events which were ever apart from Him, but formed an important part of His life.

Both in the law, the prophets and the psalms it was many times predicted and typified that He would come in the flesh, in His own person, to ransom Adam and Eve by the shedding of blood (Gen. iii, 20). And after His resurrection He appeared to His apostles and friends, and spoke to His disciples (Luke xxiv, 25-27, 44-48).

But until the Spirit came at Pentecost, it was not in them that the power of the resurrection was manifested. It was soon after the resurrection that Christ ascended into heaven, and the Spirit came to His church, and the church was born.

It is one thing to have the Lord Jesus Christ as our teacher and "Who taught me" (John xiii, 22), but another to have the Holy Spirit in us. The Holy Spirit in us in order that the truth may grow in us and be lived out in us. We must remember that the church of God is not the body of Christ, but the body of the Holy Spirit, which we all together constitute.

This lesson is found in Matthew and Mark, and the meaning of the words may not be considered to be identical, but the lesson is found in Luke also.

The account by Mark is the most full, and best tells us that the disciples were afraid and trembled at many things unless filled with and taught by the Spirit. Luke says they understood none of these things (Luke xvi, 34).

The request of James and John, either directly or through their mother, to be allowed to sit in His right and left hand in His kingdom led to His question, "Are ye able to drink of the cup and be baptized with the baptism?" Yes, they replied, but when He said, "Ye will not drink of the cup and be baptized with the baptism," they said, "We will follow Thee, Lord."

How little we understand it! Things heavenly are so far beyond us, and as our natural minds are deceitful and spontaneously wicked, we do not know us thoroughly even in spite of all our weakness and wickedness—none of them can be any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him." But it is also written in John xxi, 24, "Deliver unto me the keys of the kingdom of heaven." And again in I Tim. i, 5, 6, "The man Christ Jesus gave Himself a ransom for us to be set free from sin and death." How great an atonement is sufficient for the whole world, but it becomes difficult only for those who truly receive Him. It is only He that hath the son who hath the life.

In order that He might become a reason for our sins he humbly "laid self from heaven." From the glory which he had in the Father he came down to us, but he did not remain long in the world, but he soon became off from the world, but it becomes difficult for those who truly receive Him. It is only He that hath the son who hath the life.

According to Matthew, He healed two blind men as He departed from Jericho. Mark, however, says that the name of the two blind men was Bartimaeus and Eleazar. These two blind men followed Him, and when He had heard them, He healed them. He did not ask us to believe that they had heard the name of His name, and when He had heard them, He healed them. He did not ask us to believe that they had heard the name of His name, and when He had heard them, He healed them.

A Low Rating in Prospect

Little Mildred is in her first term at school where she gets reports as to her standing marked on a decimal scale. One hundred is perfect, and sixty is pretty safe; but to get a high mark while saying her evening prayers, her spirits, always high, were actually irrepressible, and her petticoat was always tucked with snickers and motherless giggles.

"Do you think the Lord will like that kind of a prayer?" asked her mother reproachfully.

"None," returned Mildred glibly. "Not much! He'll grieve 'bout fifty on that!"—From "Woman's Home Companion for July."

Too Many of Us

It would not be possible to give more than an approximate of the earth's total population, for the reason that there are still many savage tribes in the out-of-the-way places of the globe whose numbers can only be guessed at. However, based on the estimate made by John Bartholomew, F.R.G.S., Edinburgh, Scotland, and revised for 1910, the total population was 1,320,150,000.

The pine reaches a maximum age of 700 years, the silver fir 425, the larch 275, the red beech 245, the aspen 210, the birch 200, the ash 170, the elder 145 and the elm 130.

Link With Charles II.

Alfred Heneage Cockes, of Henley, writes to a London paper as follows: "I am afraid I am a boy. I know an old gentleman who (as a boy) had dances with an (old) lady who (as a girl) had dances with Charles II. here were therefore only two lives between my father (born 1815, died '89) and Charles II."

A young lady who taught a class of young boys in a small School desired to impress on them the meaning of return thanks before a meal. Turning to one of the class, whose father was a deacon in the church, she said to him:

"Woman, what is the first thing your father says when he sits down to the table?"

"He says, 'Go slow with the butter, kids; it's forty cents a pound,'" replied the youngster.—Everybody's.

Want $6,000

The Council met on Monday night in regular session in the Council chamber, those present being Mayor Atkins, Councillors Omond, St. Clair, Good, Hunzinger, Moyer, and Sec. Read.

The first matter taken up was the question of the amount of money wanted to conduct town affairs. After discussing ways and means at some length it was decided unanimously that the sum of $6,000 should be raised by taxes for town purposes.

The point in question was also discussed and the Council decided that they would go to work at once and construct a pound on the town property as they had experienced so much trouble in their efforts to obtain a suitable place.

The constable was instructed to proceed to collect the poll taxes at once. He reported that a lot of the young fellows had refused to pay previously as they claimed they were on the fire brigade. The Council decided to take no notice of this protest as they (the Council) had called two meetings to reorganize the fire brigade and none of these young men had attended the meeting.

A request from Messrs. Weicker and C. Hieber to construct a drain from their business places across Railway Street was brought before the Council but as there were several points to be considered before they could grant this request, it was laid over.

Two small bills amounting in all to $9.75 was ordered paid.

Several small pieces of sidewalk were petitioned for and will be laid.

The Agricultural Society asked for a grant of $200 which was allowed. They also asked that the town share in the cost of sinking a well at the park for Fair and town purposes. This was agreed to as the Council considered it was as much for the benefit of the town as any other society or corporation.

Part of the town park will be plowed this year if the necessary help can be secured. It was decided that the road running from Boundary Street to King Edward Street should be brushed and plowed for a fire guard.

The Council then adjourned.

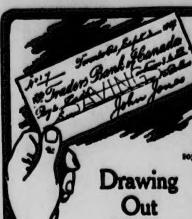

A Warning to Parents

An unfortunate accident occurred on Saturday, to the seven year old son of David Robinson, who lives 3 miles south-east of Bruce. It appears that the boy was running beside the mower which Harold, his fifteen year old brother, was operating, when by some means his feet caught in the cutter bar and both were cut off at the ankles.

The brother promptly took out his own bone faces and tied up the bleeding stump, or the little fellow would likely have bled to death, and then drove him over a mile to his home. The boy will most likely live through the thoughtful care of his brother.

Another accident of this nature happened near Vegreville at about the same time, when a child of Galatian parents also had both feet taken off.—Holden Herald.

This should be a warning at this time of the year to parents who allow their little children to follow farm machinery while in motion.
